Senator Richard Darcey Speaks Out About

The Financial System Criticised

Speaking in the Senate during the Budget debate on September 11, Senator Darcey delivered a characteristically vivid speech in which he made a number of key points, including his continued self-imposed task of educating his fellow-Senators on the vital question of finance. Here is the first part of his speech as reported by "Hansard":

"The time has come to examine the entire financial system and its effects on our society. The banks and financial institutions have accumulated huge profits and the public has been left to bear the cost of this. The time has come to question the very foundations of our financial system.

"When banks make loans, they actively encourage the accumulation of debt. The amount of money in circulation increases, which in turn leads to inflation. The banks get bigger, the public gets poorer.

"When banks fail to meet their obligations, the government is forced to step in and bail them out. This is a lose-lose situation for everyone. The government loses tax revenue, and the public is left with a bill they cannot pay.

"The time has come for change. We need a financial system that works for the people, not the banks. We need a system that is transparent, accountable, and regulated.

"In conclusion, I urge the government to take serious action to address the flaws in our financial system. The public deserves better."

(To be continued)
THE NEW TIMES

October 9, 1942

BEWARE OF WELL-INFORMED CIRCLES

In one of his so-called "chat" gatherings, the Editor of the New Times, Dr. James C. Bell, submitted a special question to the audience: "What is the role of the propagandist in a time of war?"

Dr. Bell asked this question in the context of the current events, particularly the recent outbreak of war in Europe. He emphasized the importance of propagandists in disseminating accurate information and countering misinformation during times of crisis.

Dr. Bell also discussed the role of the media in shaping public opinion and the need for careful consideration of the messages being put forth. He highlighted the importance of ensuring that the messages are clear, concise, and truthful, as misinformation can lead to confusion and potential harm.

Dr. Bell concluded by emphasizing the need for propagandists to be well-informed and to have a deep understanding of the issues at hand. He underscored the importance of engaging with the audience and fostering a sense of trust and reliability in the information being disseminated.

Dr. Bell then went on to discuss the role of the propagandist in shaping public opinion and the importance of maintaining a clear and consistent message. He emphasized the need for propagandists to be aware of the potential for manipulation and to take steps to ensure that their messages are not exploited by those seeking to mislead.

Dr. Bell concluded by stressing the importance of the role of the propagandist in shaping public opinion and the need for careful consideration of the messages being put forth. He underscored the importance of ensuring that the messages are clear, concise, and truthful, as misinformation can lead to confusion and potential harm.

Dr. Bell concluded by emphasizing the need for propagandists to be well-informed and to have a deep understanding of the issues at hand. He underscored the importance of engaging with the audience and fostering a sense of trust and reliability in the information being disseminated.

Dr. Bell then went on to discuss the role of the propagandist in shaping public opinion and the importance of maintaining a clear and consistent message. He emphasized the need for propagandists to be aware of the potential for manipulation and to take steps to ensure that their messages are not exploited by those seeking to mislead.

Dr. Bell concluded by stressing the importance of the role of the propagandist in shaping public opinion and the need for careful consideration of the messages being put forth. He underscored the importance of ensuring that the messages are clear, concise, and truthful, as misinformation can lead to confusion and potential harm.

Dr. Bell concluded by emphasizing the need for propagandists to be well-informed and to have a deep understanding of the issues at hand. He underscored the importance of engaging with the audience and fostering a sense of trust and reliability in the information being disseminated.

Dr. Bell then went on to discuss the role of the propagandist in shaping public opinion and the importance of maintaining a clear and consistent message. He emphasized the need for propagandists to be aware of the potential for manipulation and to take steps to ensure that their messages are not exploited by those seeking to mislead.

Dr. Bell concluded by stressing the importance of the role of the propagandist in shaping public opinion and the need for careful consideration of the messages being put forth. He underscored the importance of ensuring that the messages are clear, concise, and truthful, as misinformation can lead to confusion and potential harm.

Dr. Bell concluded by emphasizing the need for propagandists to be well-informed and to have a deep understanding of the issues at hand. He underscored the importance of engaging with the audience and fostering a sense of trust and reliability in the information being disseminated.

Dr. Bell then went on to discuss the role of the propagandist in shaping public opinion and the importance of maintaining a clear and consistent message. He emphasized the need for propagandists to be aware of the potential for manipulation and to take steps to ensure that their messages are not exploited by those seeking to mislead.

Dr. Bell concluded by stressing the importance of the role of the propagandist in shaping public opinion and the need for careful consideration of the messages being put forth. He underscored the importance of ensuring that the messages are clear, concise, and truthful, as misinformation can lead to confusion and potential harm.

Dr. Bell concluded by emphasizing the need for propagandists to be well-informed and to have a deep understanding of the issues at hand. He underscored the importance of engaging with the audience and fostering a sense of trust and reliability in the information being disseminated.

Dr. Bell then went on to discuss the role of the propagandist in shaping public opinion and the importance of maintaining a clear and consistent message. He emphasized the need for propagandists to be aware of the potential for manipulation and to take steps to ensure that their messages are not exploited by those seeking to mislead.

Dr. Bell concluded by stressing the importance of the role of the propagandist in shaping public opinion and the need for careful consideration of the messages being put forth. He underscored the importance of ensuring that the messages are clear, concise, and truthful, as misinformation can lead to confusion and potential harm.

Dr. Bell concluded by emphasizing the need for propagandists to be well-informed and to have a deep understanding of the issues at hand. He underscored the importance of engaging with the audience and fostering a sense of trust and reliability in the information being disseminated.

Dr. Bell then went on to discuss the role of the propagandist in shaping public opinion and the importance of maintaining a clear and consistent message. He emphasized the need for propagandists to be aware of the potential for manipulation and to take steps to ensure that their messages are not exploited by those seeking to mislead.

Dr. Bell concluded by stressing the importance of the role of the propagandist in shaping public opinion and the need for careful consideration of the messages being put forth. He underscored the importance of ensuring that the messages are clear, concise, and truthful, as misinformation can lead to confusion and potential harm.

Dr. Bell concluded by emphasizing the need for propagandists to be well-informed and to have a deep understanding of the issues at hand. He underscored the importance of engaging with the audience and fostering a sense of trust and reliability in the information being disseminated.

Dr. Bell then went on to discuss the role of the propagandist in shaping public opinion and the importance of maintaining a clear and consistent message. He emphasized the need for propagandists to be aware of the potential for manipulation and to take steps to ensure that their messages are not exploited by those seeking to mislead.

Dr. Bell concluded by stressing the importance of the role of the propagandist in shaping public opinion and the need for careful consideration of the messages being put forth. He underscored the importance of ensuring that the messages are clear, concise, and truthful, as misinformation can lead to confusion and potential harm.

Dr. Bell concluded by emphasizing the need for propagandists to be well-informed and to have a deep understanding of the issues at hand. He underscored the importance of engaging with the audience and fostering a sense of trust and reliability in the information being disseminated.

Dr. Bell then went on to discuss the role of the propagandist in shaping public opinion and the importance of maintaining a clear and consistent message. He emphasized the need for propagandists to be aware of the potential for manipulation and to take steps to ensure that their messages are not exploited by those seeking to mislead.

Dr. Bell concluded by stressing the importance of the role of the propagandist in shaping public opinion and the need for careful consideration of the messages being put forth. He underscored the importance of ensuring that the messages are clear, concise, and truthful, as misinformation can lead to confusion and potential harm.

Dr. Bell concluded by emphasizing the need for propagandists to be well-informed and to have a deep understanding of the issues at hand. He underscored the importance of engaging with the audience and fostering a sense of trust and reliability in the information being disseminated.

Dr. Bell then went on to discuss the role of the propagandist in shaping public opinion and the importance of maintaining a clear and consistent message. He emphasized the need for propagandists to be aware of the potential for manipulation and to take steps to ensure that their messages are not exploited by those seeking to mislead.

Dr. Bell concluded by stressing the importance of the role of the propagandist in shaping public opinion and the need for careful consideration of the messages being put forth. He underscored the importance of ensuring that the messages are clear, concise, and truthful, as misinformation can lead to confusion and potential harm.

Dr. Bell concluded by emphasizing the need for propagandists to be well-informed and to have a deep understanding of the issues at hand. He underscored the importance of engaging with the audience and fostering a sense of trust and reliability in the information being disseminated.

Dr. Bell then went on to discuss the role of the propagandist in shaping public opinion and the importance of maintaining a clear and consistent message. He emphasized the need for propagandists to be aware of the potential for manipulation and to take steps to ensure that their messages are not exploited by those seeking to mislead.

Dr. Bell concluded by stressing the importance of the role of the propagandist in shaping public opinion and the need for careful consideration of the messages being put forth. He underscored the importance of ensuring that the messages are clear, concise, and truthful, as misinformation can lead to confusion and potential harm.

Dr. Bell concluded by emphasizing the need for propagandists to be well-informed and to have a deep understanding of the issues at hand. He underscored the importance of engaging with the audience and fostering a sense of trust and reliability in the information being disseminated.

Dr. Bell then went on to discuss the role of the propagandist in shaping public opinion and the importance of maintaining a clear and consistent message. He emphasized the need for propagandists to be aware of the potential for manipulation and to take steps to ensure that their messages are not exploited by those seeking to mislead.

Dr. Bell concluded by stressing the importance of the role of the propagandist in shaping public opinion and the need for careful consideration of the messages being put forth. He underscored the importance of ensuring that the messages are clear, concise, and truthful, as misinformation can lead to confusion and potential harm.

Dr. Bell concluded by emphasizing the need for propagandists to be well-informed and to have a deep understanding of the issues at hand. He underscored the importance of engaging with the audience and fostering a sense of trust and reliability in the information being disseminated.

Dr. Bell then went on to discuss the role of the propagandist in shaping public opinion and the importance of maintaining a clear and consistent message. He emphasized the need for propagandists to be aware of the potential for manipulation and to take steps to ensure that their messages are not exploited by those seeking to mislead.

Dr. Bell concluded by stressing the importance of the role of the propagandist in shaping public opinion and the need for careful consideration of the messages being put forth. He underscored the importance of ensuring that the messages are clear, concise, and truthful, as misinformation can lead to confusion and potential harm.

Dr. Bell concluded by emphasizing the need for propagandists to be well-informed and to have a deep understanding of the issues at hand. He underscored the importance of engaging with the audience and fostering a sense of trust and reliability in the information being disseminated.
SOUTHERN AUSTRIAN LANDS
(from United States, 17th Waymouth st Adelaide)

The application of the new land work policy of the United States, which has been in force for some years, is now being applied in South Australia. Under this policy, the individual farmer is provided with an opportunity to meet a great number of men. With every farmer's experience challenge in every way, Mr. Herbert has also called to the Imperial Bank and to the "Six Sides and New West to meet the challenge in the new century. Through the years, Australia has been the land of the last resort, and its farm has been a training ground for the future. In this kind of determined individual spirit, we can find a solution to the problem of how the individual farmer can be able to---of similar work. It is clear that the kind of solution that can be found is as follows:

Mr. W. Lee. Hon. Secretary.

A REMINDER

In February, the Government in South Australia at the request of Mr. Robert (Bobe) O'Brien, the Minister for Agriculture, appropriated a sum of $10,000 for the construction of a new farm near the town of Tailem. The Government's action was taken in order to relieve the severe drought conditions prevailing in the district. The appropriation was made available to the farmer, Mr. O'Brien, who was appointed to the position of farm laborer, and the result was the establishment of a new farm near the town of Tailem.

COlONEL HAROLD COHEN

Sir, I am writing to the government in order to apprise them of the new developments in the field of government activities. Sir, I am very concerned about the welfare of the people.

This basis is as follows:

(1) The government is interested in the well-being of the population.
(2) The government is interested in the welfare of the people.
(3) The government is interested in the welfare of the children.
(4) The government is interested in the welfare of the elderly.
(5) The government is interested in the welfare of the disabled.

I am very concerned about the welfare of the people. The government is interested in the welfare of the people. The government is interested in the welfare of the children. The government is interested in the welfare of the elderly. The government is interested in the welfare of the disabled.

I am very concerned about the welfare of the people. The government is interested in the welfare of the people. The government is interested in the welfare of the children. The government is interested in the welfare of the elderly. The government is interested in the welfare of the disabled.

I am very concerned about the welfare of the people. The government is interested in the welfare of the people. The government is interested in the welfare of the children. The government is interested in the welfare of the elderly. The government is interested in the welfare of the disabled.

I am very concerned about the welfare of the people. The government is interested in the welfare of the people. The government is interested in the welfare of the children. The government is interested in the welfare of the elderly. The government is interested in the welfare of the disabled.

I am very concerned about the welfare of the people. The government is interested in the welfare of the people. The government is interested in the welfare of the children. The government is interested in the welfare of the elderly. The government is interested in the welfare of the disabled.

I am very concerned about the welfare of the people. The government is interested in the welfare of the people. The government is interested in the welfare of the children. The government is interested in the welfare of the elderly. The government is interested in the welfare of the disabled.

I am very concerned about the welfare of the people. The government is interested in the welfare of the people. The government is interested in the welfare of the children. The government is interested in the welfare of the elderly. The government is interested in the welfare of the disabled.
ASSIGNMENT IN UTOPIA
A LETTER FROM A CANADIAN MP

BOOK 1: PRELUDE TO MOSCOW

V. WORKING FOR THE SOVIET UNION

VI. A一代新民主主义和民主主义的一致性的开始

The Australia Daily Telegraph, Sydney, 1940.

By 1926, the repercussions of the

B. B. W. T. (To be continued.)

W. T. B. T. (To be continued.)